FROM OUR DIRECTOR

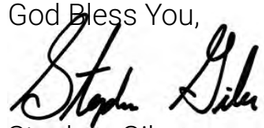

Dear Brothers and Sisters,

Thank you so much for your partnership with Kairos. I'm excited to share with you this brochure and our upcoming line up of trips and programs. Each year, the preparation of this brochure is a time of reflection on the past year, especially the past summer's trips. And this last summer was a good one! We had three fantastic Adventure Guides with us and nearly 100 individuals on trips. From North Carolina to Wyoming, and from Tennessee to Michigan's Upper Peninsula, we covered a lot of ground in our valiant white vans. We hope you enjoy the pictures throughout this brochure from these trips.

On pages 5 and 6, you can read a bit about our most recent Parents Forum, but don't forget to listen to the recording if you weren't able to join us live. We also have a beautiful testimony on pages 21 and 22 from Fatima Vite, who served with us as a Gapper last year. As usual, we share some thoughts about guiding your children in their post high school decisions, starting on page 23. And of course you'll find information and interest form links for all of our programs throughout.

Once again, thank you so much for your partnership with Kairos, and for all of your work in the home and in your communities for the Kingdom of God. We're grateful to serve alongside each of you and pray for all of you regularly.

God Bless You,

Stephen Giles
Director of Kairos

ANNUAL PARENTS FORUM

The 2026 Kairos Parents Forum focused on establishing and strengthening family culture. Culture is fundamentally formative. This is true for each of us, but especially so for young people. The culture that we form in our homes shapes them and in many ways directs them, hopefully towards what is good. One of the foundations of building a strong family culture is viewing the family as a “community of daily life.” We are related to our family members through blood and the law, but our connection with them also comes from the simplest of things: our daily life together. Family culture isn’t abstract, it’s as practical as anything. It’s dinners at the table, doing dishes together, helping younger siblings with homework, and staying up late talking with teenagers. In this forum, we presented three “levers” to help each of us strengthen our family cultures and respond to what God has invited us to build. First, we need a vision of where we’re going, but also an understanding of where we are right now. Second, we want to establish daily patterns that help unite us and give context for our relationships. Finally, we want our homes to be warm - which might sound vague, but it’s not. To hear why it’s not only practical, but also essential, drop us a line (kairos-na.org/contact) and we’ll gladly send you the recording.

“Kairos Parenting Forums have been a great blessing to our family. The content is relevant to the pressing and ever changing topics we face as parents, especially in the realm of technology. It's always principle-based without being too prescriptive while also providing concrete examples. One additional highlight was having the Moccia's on play acting talking to their younger selves. It was a creative and fun way to present a lot of helpful info around the teenage years in particular. Parenting is a difficult yet rich journey and we are always in need of wisdom and perspective!”

THE YES RETREAT

The YES Retreat is a three-day, two-night high school retreat for Sword of the Spirit youth and their friends. The goal for this weekend is to create an environment where youth have the chance to say YES to the Lord's call of discipleship. The retreat also aims to bring youth to initial or deeper conversion, to pray with them for baptism in the Spirit, to help them grow in confidence in worship, and to encourage them in the use of the gifts of the Spirit.

Participants and volunteer staff can expect a weekend of awesome talks, testimonies, and breakout sessions; deep discussion in small groups; and powerful, God-honoring worship!

"I was able to attend the Prophecy breakout this year and it was such a powerful reminder that God still wants to speak with and through us. As I was praying over someone during the breakout, I couldn't help but feel overwhelmingly blessed and thankful. I was able to take what I'd learned in the talk and apply it during small groups on Saturday night. This experience reinforced that God hears us and is with us even when we don't feel a deep emotional connection. It helped me to continue praying even when my prayer felt dry."

YES RETREAT 2026 SENIOR

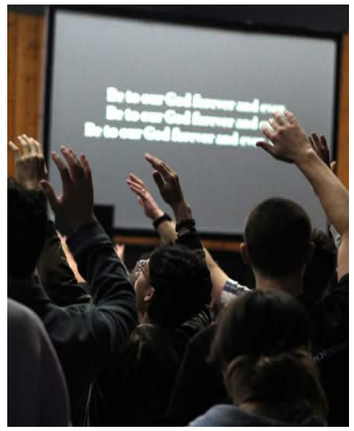

The community at YES was incredibly welcoming. And the talks really had meaning and taught me things. In the future, I know hardships and struggle will come, YES Retreat was my reminder that God is with me no matter what, and that instead of worrying, I should embrace God as my Father.

THE KAIROS SUMMIT

The Kairos Summit is a 5-day trip for juniors and seniors. It's a time away together to experience Kairos culture and to talk about discipleship, mission, the call of The Sword of the Spirit, and the big question: What comes next? The Summit includes typical retreat elements such as talks and worship, as well as outdoor adventure activities.

The Summit exists to help youth understand their community heritage, the opportunities before them, and to call them on to radical, lifelong discipleship. Because of this, the Kairos staff believes it is the most important event we offer!

DATES: JUNE 24 - 28, 2027
LOCATION: PENNSYLVANIA
COST: $410
REGISTRATION DEADLINE: MAY 22, 2027
KAIROS-NA.ORG/KAIROS-SUMMIT

A note on transportation: For those who live near Michigan, we offer transportation with the Kairos vans for an additional $40. Those from farther away have often carpooled with other youth and local youth workers. Please connect with other families, local youth workers, and with the Kairos Staff to coordinate this.

My experience on the Kairos Summit this past summer was one of encounter and new understanding. This time set apart from the rest of the world was so powerful in showing me that the Lord has a unique plan for my life and that some aspect of community is meant to be a part of it. The Kairos Summit is such an amazing chance for the youth of the Sword of the Spirit communities to interact with each other, learn about life in community, encounter the Lord, and have fun out in nature. It was truly a time set apart from the world where the Lord could speak clearly and powerfully to me, especially during our three hours of solitude. It will forever be in my memory as an incredible experience and a truly wonderful culmination to my time as a Kairos youth.

AMANDA - SUMMIT 2026

It was an incredible blessing to go on the Summit each of the past two years. Not only is it a time to reflect and look ahead, it is also an opportunity to learn about the founding prophecies of the Sword of the Spirit. The worship, prayer ministry, and solitude time are powerful. And the fellowship is great, whether on a hike, during Lord's Day, or just hanging out.

A trip to the Boundary Waters has been a significant thing in the life of many, many women, and there is perhaps no other place on earth like it! Prayer, relationships, serving one another, and intentional conversations about discipleship will also be key elements of this trip.

This summer was one of the most challenging and rewarding experiences I have had. From long days of physical work and difficult hikes to moments of prayer, laughter, and friendship, every experience gave me something to take away. I appreciated seeing how quickly a group of people can become a community when they are willing to work, struggle, and grow together. I watched young men encourage each other through difficult moments, take on responsibilities they had never faced before, and find joy in situations that were far from comfortable. At the same time, I was constantly being challenged to become more patient, humble, and willing to serve. This summer taught me a lot about leadership, but more importantly, it reminded me that leadership is ultimately about living for other people. I am grateful to have spent this summer serving, growing, and learning to trust the Lord more fully.

THE GAP PROGRAM

The Kairos Gap Program provides high school graduates with an opportunity to radically orient the rest of their lives towards Jesus Christ and His Kingdom. Through service, formation, community, and more, Gappers will grow into men and women who impact the world for Christ! Taking a year off to be a Gapper can be intimidating, but we have seen time and time again that doing a Gap year helps set a young person up for a life of not just success, but significance.

DATES: EARLY AUGUST 2027 - MID MAY 2028
LOCATION: LANSING, MI

WHAT DOES A GAP YEAR LOOK LIKE?

What a Kairos Gap year looks like can vary somewhat by each individual, their circumstances, and what they are looking for. However, a few key elements always exist, namely: rich community life, robust service, and finally, personal and spiritual formation.

COST BREAKDOWN

- Program fee: $2,500
- Living expenses: $2,500 - $6,000 depending on housing situation
- Gappers from the US can work a part-time job to contribute to living expenses. International gappers are not legally allowed to work for pay.

GAP ALUMNA TESTIMONY

Fatima Vite

Looking back on my Gap Year in Lansing, Michigan, I can honestly say that God did so much more than I could have ever imagined. What started as a step into the unknown became one of the most meaningful experiences of my life. I went there hoping to grow in my relationship with God, but I never imagined how deeply He would transform my heart, teach me to trust Him, and show me what it truly means to love others.

When I first arrived, I was so excited, but I was also scared. I remember my second day at UCO's CMA retreat, feeling completely overwhelmed. There were so many people around me, everyone was speaking another language, and I suddenly realized how far away I was from everything familiar. At one point, I even wanted to go back home. I remember praying, "Lord, I made it all the way here… Now what? What do You want from me this year?" God answered me through a passage in Exodus, where He called Moses to trust in His plans and follow His voice. That moment completely changed my perspective. I realized I wasn't there by accident and that I didn't need to have everything figured out. I just needed to trust that God had brought me there for a reason. From that moment on, I started seeing this year differently. Instead of focusing on my fears and everything I had left behind, I began asking God what He wanted to do in me and through me.

One of the greatest ways I experienced God's love this year was through the way He answered my prayers. Maybe not always immediately, and definitely not always in the way I expected, but He was always present. Every single time, He reminded me that I was not alone. I experienced His love through the people He placed in my life, the conversations we shared, the meals around the table, the laughter, the prayers, and even the challenges. He gave me a home away from home and people who made me feel loved and welcomed. Looking back, I can see that God was answering prayers I didn't even know how to put into words. He was showing me that His love is not just something we talk about, but something we can experience through others every day.

Another important part of this journey was learning to step outside my comfort zone, especially when it came to loving people. Moving to another country, speaking another language, meeting people from different backgrounds, and building friendships from scratch were not always easy. Sometimes I struggled to express myself because I didn't have the words I would normally use in Spanish. But through that experience, God reminded me that my identity is not based on how well I speak, how comfortable I feel, or how others perceive me. Before anything else, I am His daughter.

I also learned something beautiful about love. Before coming here, I used to hate awkward silences. I always felt like I had to fill them with words. Now, I've learned that sometimes love means simply being present. You don't always need to say something or have everything in common with someone to build a meaningful friendship. Sometimes, walking together, sitting together, or just sharing a moment is enough. This year pushed me to start conversations, ask questions, invite people into my life, and allow them to know me. It taught me to love people not only when it feels natural or easy, but also when they are different from me. And, through those differences, God gave me friendships and memories I will carry with me forever.

As I look back, I realize that my Gap Year was about so much more than taking a break before college. It was about learning to trust God when I couldn't see the whole picture, recognizing His love in the people and moments He gave me, and allowing Him to change the way I love others. I came into this experience not knowing exactly what to expect, but God gave me a family, a home away from home, and a deeper understanding of His love. This experience taught me that following God doesn't mean knowing where every step will lead. It means trusting Him enough to take the next step, even when it feels uncomfortable or uncertain. I don't know exactly what comes next, but I know that the same God who guided me throughout this year will continue to guide me wherever He leads me. And if there is one thing I will always carry with me, it is the certainty that His plans are perfect, His timing is never a mistake, and His love never stops showing up. I will never get tired of being a witness to that.

Fatima Vite grew up in Incienso de Dios in Xalapa, Mexico. She served as a Kairos Gapper during the 2025-26 school year.

BRIDGING AFTER HIGH SCHOOL

At the end of this brochure, we want to take some time to talk about what comes next for your high school graduate. For parents of upperclassmen, the time is approaching when your son or daughter will make a significant decision about his or her future - the decision of whether or where to attend university.

For The Workplace Bound

Some of our young people will enter the workforce directly from high school or after attending a vocational school. It is the case that, in North America, most of the post-high school ministries connected to our communities are focused around university life and university student outreach. This can make it difficult for a young person who is working full-time to connect with these environments. However, it is still quite possible, and usually very good, for your high school graduate to connect with his or her peers in a university outreach context.

Even if they are not attending university, your son or daughter would usually be most welcome to join the formation program at a university outreach. Often, they would even be able to apply to live in a household. Connecting with a local director or coordinator can be a great place to start.

For some people who enter the workforce right out of high school, being part of a university environment simply doesn't work. This may be due to something as simple as an early morning work schedule. If this is the case, encourage them to speak with a local coordinator about getting into an appropriate men's or women's group and about ways to receive formation that works with their life. This will probably mean connecting with people who are a few years older. But the input of people with more life experience can be very helpful to a person trying to get established in life. It should also be noted that some community youth have found it very fruitful to serve in the high school programs from which they graduated. This seems to give them a good connection with their community and a significant way to be on mission.

On the topic of mission, we should note that the communities of our region are not currently very effective in reaching people that work in the trades or take a career path right out of high school. But likely all of us realize that it's not just college students who need to be evangelized or need Christian community; it could be the case that our own children will help us improve in this area!

For The College Bound

The transition from high school to university is one of the most crucial times in the life of a young person, and the four years (or more!) spent in university are the years when the seeds for many decisions about the future are planted and nourished. These decisions have long-term effects on one's life and stem from the choice of where to attend university.

Furthermore, for us in Sword of the Spirit communities, we should note especially that the long-term ability of our young people to participate in our communities is greatly influenced by their college choice. Most community youth who do not connect with one of our Sword of the Spirit outreaches, or college outreaches friendly to our movement, during their college years do not participate in our communities as adults. Finally, our community youth have an important part to play in reaching their peers and building Christian communities on campus. Where they go to college, and the groups they join, will limit or encourage this contribution.

Even for young people who do well in high school, it can be extremely difficult to continue on a path to the Lord and to life in Christian community. For this reason, we strongly recommend that you help your child choose a university with a strong discipleship formation program, a vibrant community, and a missionary culture.

In addition, here are some very simple strategies you may find useful in helping your son or daughter connect with such outreaches:

1. Over the next few months, talk with your child about how their college choice will or will not allow them to connect to the Sword of the Spirit and its broader work. Recommend that the presence of a Sword of the Spirit outreach be an important factor in choosing a college.

2. Financially support the options you endorse: If you plan to pay for or contribute to your child's college education then you have created a large seat at the decision-making table. Use it to encourage your child to choose a college with a Sword of the Spirit outreach.

3. Some of our young people just want to "get out of town" for a while. This is not always a bad thing. Talk to them about where they could go to college within the wider network of the Sword of the Spirit, and help them connect with the leaders at those schools. Part of this strategy could be to delay their college choice for a year. Present the option of doing a year of service before deciding on a college - the Kairos GAP program (page 19) might be a great fit!

4. Even if your child attends a college without a Sword of the Spirit outreach, there are still ways for them to connect. The Kairos Adventure Guide program is open to any high school graduate (see page 18). We've loved having college students spend their summer with us. Without joining UCO, your child can participate in UCO's Campus Mission Academy, a 6-day conference held each August. Both programs will provide your child with Christian inspiration, training, and a network of Christian friends.

Thank you for your work in raising young men and women for the Kingdom of Christ. Your parenting is a contribution to the Lord's work, and the work of the Sword of the Spirit. It is a pleasure to serve you and your children.

HOW TO MANAGE ALL THESE TRIPS

All the trips and retreats Kairos offers can really add up. Both in terms of quantity and cost - especially if you have a large family! We'd like to offer you, the parents, a little input as to how to navigate and prioritize.

How do we pay for all this?

1. If you're having trouble affording a trip, first check with your local community. Most of our communities have funds to get their youth on regional trips.
2. Many communities have systems in place that allow youth to fundraise for their trips; check with your local youth group leader to see if this is an option. More pastorally, having a high schooler fundraise for their own trip is a great way for them to take ownership of that trip!
3. If your community is not in a position to help and fundraising is not an option, please contact us. While it's true that Kairos is not set up to provide scholarships to all the youth of our Region, we're usually able to offer some sort of discount. We believe that lack of funds is a bad reason for your child to miss out - so we'll do our best to make something work.

What trips and events should we prioritize?

1. We think that The Summit is the most important thing for your child to attend - we would love to have 100% of our incoming high school seniors attend!
2. The YES Retreat is the second most important; ideally, a high schooler would attend this retreat every year (though we certainly recognize that for the communities that have to fly to the retreat, this may not be a possibility).
3. For the adventure trips, while it's great if youth can go on all of them, if that's not possible, going on one or two is excellent! High schoolers usually have a lot of options in the summer, so it may work better to prioritize trips for 7th and 8th graders. This is also a strategic way for your youth to build relationships with future YES Retreat participants.
4. Lastly, we don't want to compete with the plans of local communities. If there is a direct conflict, we think it's good to participate in the local community's trip, camp, or retreat.

ARRANGING TRANSPORTATION

We know that arranging transportation to and from a Kairos summer trip can be a real challenge. First of all, we would like to thank the many parents who, over the years, have driven youth to trips, planned with other parents, and volunteered their cars to make it possible for young people to attend. This is a huge service that often goes unnoticed, but it has been hugely important - so thank you! Second, we would like to offer a few thoughts to hopefully help make this area less cumbersome.

First, while we can't simply "solve" the transportation issue, we do want to be a support. So, if you think it's going to be a problem, contact us so we can work together, share ideas, and hopefully find a good solution. The sooner we start the conversation and get other families looped in, the better. The first step would be to fill out the trip interest form and contact the listed trip leader.

Second, get in touch with other families from your community who may have youth on the same trip. We can let you know who else has expressed interest. Starting these conversations early can be very helpful.

Finally, there is often one parent who does a lot of work to organize transportation for a number of youth from their area: a Transportation Champion, so to speak. We'll now be offering a trip discount to that family, based on the work they do to make the trip a reality for multiple youth. If you're interested in doing this, let us know!

WHAT WE VALUE

Kairos Time
We value time that is set apart: different from the everyday, protected from distraction. These are times when God acts, and we can respond.

Embracing the Struggle
Life is full of hardships and obstacles. We want to encourage our youth to rise to these challenges, meet them with hope, and become antifragile.

Community-Glue
Christ-centered, life-long relationships help hold our communities together. We seek to provide the environments where these are built.

Servant Heartedness
We are honored to serve young people. And we serve them greatly when we model a servant's heart, and invite them to serve one another.

Big Life Vision
God's plan for our life is bigger than our own. We want to help young people look to eternity, and see their lives as the Lord sees them.

"Yes, Lord"
Every person's walk with God involves a next step. We value these opportunities for growth, and invite all to say "yes" to Jesus, the Lord.
